BRIDGTON
Saved Cottage by Lake
The fire department was called out about 8 o'clock Friday morning for a fire in the cottage known as the Harold Gleason cottage in Shorey's Grove. The fire caught around the furnace and but for the prompt arrival of the fire department would have been serious.

The cottage is located some distance from the highway and the heavy snows made it difficult for the trucks to reach the place, but the firemen broke a road through and the place was saved from destruction.

The loss is estimated at a few hundred dollars, and was covered by insurance. The camp is located in a large grove on the shore of Highland Lake and with the fierce winds blowing, flames threatened other cottages.

The wind was blowing a gale at this time and the temperature very cold. The time and the temperature very cold. The time and the temperature very cold. The time and the temperature very cold.

Freezing Hurts Milk
Everyone knows that freezing changes milk, but few know what actually happens to it when it is "nipped" these cold winter mornings. The most casual observer can see that the cream in thawed milk is not the same as in normal milk. He also notices a flaky appearance in the portion of it at the top. These are physical changes. The cream is partially churned in freezing, and once churned it can no more be "un-churned" than an egg can be "un-scrambled." The flaky appearance is due to a change in the casein or curd of the milk, which has lost its original colloidal condition. Milk is also chemically changed by freezing. Fat in milk in its original state is in emulsion which is broken down by low temperatures, so that the resultant substance is hard to digest and should not be fed to infants or sold for family use. Attention to keeping milk from freezing on the part of dairymen, will give consumers more confidence in their product and lead to greater demand and higher prices.

Norway and Vicinity
Norway School News
Thursday morning, January 22, Miss Stevenson conducted the weekly music lesson. Several new songs were tried, and a number of old favorites were sung. The Senior Committee held a meeting Thursday morning, January 22. There was no school, Friday, January 23, because of the extreme weather conditions. Inez McAllister, '25, has been appointed chairman of a committee in charge of a food sale to be held Thursday, February 5, for the benefit of the Senior class. The Sophomores held a class meeting Tuesday morning, January 27. Members of the Junior and Senior shortland classes are much engrossed in shortland cross word puzzles. Not only are they solving them, but making their own puzzles. Once or twice a week a member of the Senior shortland class conducts a review of the puzzles. It is not only a splendid practice for the student-teacher, but it creates more interest in the class. Mildred Taylor, Lucy Cobb, Margaret Allard and Irene LaFrance have already taught. Wednesday, January 28, Olive Stearns will have charge. The other members of the class will take their turn. The girls' basketball team plays at Woodstock, Friday night, January 30.

Agricultural Class Notes
This week the Freshmen in the class are engaged in shop work and making wooden squares besides learning to file saws. Laboratory work includes the selection of grafting scions and making wax. The Aggie basketball team organized and in practice, has been shot to pieces. Three players have been drafted for the high school squad.

Walter L. Hutchins has located in Littleton, N. H., where he has employment in a shoe factory.

LOCAL EXPRESSIONS ON CROSS WORD PUZZLES
Chas. Sargent: "My admiration for the Advertiser has subsided since it began printing cross word puzzles."
Dr. Staples: "I just threw a cross word puzzle fan out of my office."
H. B. Foster: "I tried to be a cross word puzzle fan but failed."
Chief Giles Frost: "I don't monkey with them."
M. W. Sampson: "What is the purpose of the cross word puzzle?"
Bill White: "The cross word puzzle isn't a new institution. When I was a child in New York City, the New York World ran cross word puzzles in its magazine sections. I like 'em."
Julius DeCroteau: "A few weeks ago I made a real remark about cross word puzzles. I want to take it back. I'm becoming interested in them."
Walter C. Smith: "All I hear when I get home at night is cross word puzzles. My wife and the children come for me with dictionary in hand and there is no let up till bed time. Even the baby has taken it up and comes for my paper, pencil in hand, saying, 'Cross words, daddy, cross words.' When company comes in they all get to going. Guess I'll take the Radio and start for the attic, build up a fire and spend a comfortable evening." Dr. Sargent says so, the dictionaries and try the puzzle and join the rest of the family and see what fun there is in a puzzle.

Paul Brown to his mother (Mrs. Fonti Brown): "You have no brains." "Paul, what are you talking about, who said I didn't have any brains?" "Mr. Seavey said so." "I don't believe it. When have you been talking with Mr. Seavey and what does he know about my brains, anyway, I don't believe he ever said any such thing." "He did, Mama, in the Advertiser last week." "The profit of a puzzle," exclaimed Mrs. Brown. "Yes," quietly replied the young son, "he said so of anyone who wasted time on cross word puzzles."
E. S. Cummings: "On being asked what his idea of cross word puzzles was, replied: 'I married a cross word puzzle woman, and ever since and it has been cross words ever since.'"
HEN AND EGG STORY
Fred DeCoster, who lives a little way up Pike Hill, has 30 hens and pullets, Plymouth Rocks, and is getting an average of ten eggs a day for this month. Last week he sold 400 dozen eggs. He says the average price for eggs for last year was about 40 cents per dozen. Most of the eggs were used in the family. He sold the balance at a profit of a dollar per hen per year was realized. Howard DeCoster, a grandson of the above, who is attending school, paid $5.00 for a hundred eggs under the hatchling of sixty chickens from which he realized $7. He had the experience and fun of doing it with a balance on the right side.

Charles Kimball's First Circus
"My first circus was at Bethel, that is the first and only real show I ever attended. I dropped beans for two weeks and got some money; I wore a white linen suit and walked from Andover to Bethel, 18 miles. I carried my dinner in a tin pail and hid it under Mill Hill and ate it after seeing the street parade. It was some show! Have never seen anything to compare with it since and I'm somewhat of an operator, too!"
Mrs. Edna Cummings of West Paris and Miss Edna Stone of Brighton have each sent us a cross word puzzle which we are going to print in the Advertiser. We are unable to use them because of the expense of getting the cuts made. These which we use are cut from a price that we could have them made.

Blood affray on Pleasant Street. Both eyes of one boy were blacked and blood poured in quantities from the nose of the other. The boys were preparing to attend the boxing match that night.
Dr. Ivan W. Staples: "I do enjoy listening in; I've got a good radio, can hear the alligators sing in the Florida swamps. I sometimes get a little rest of mortals are wrapped to the eyes and kicking because it's cold."
Another cold session Thursday morning when the mercury settled to 30 below zero. Locally, this was the coldest morning thus far. From 35 to 42 below was reported in the outskirts of the village. Many old timers living in the village say Thursday was the coldest morning at their places in many years.
Del Penneck seems to be frost proof. Wearing only a felt hat on his head, regardless of weather, while trucking about the village, is some state of rest of mortals are wrapped to the eyes and kicking because it's cold.

Arthur Tucker is attending the National Cammers' Convention at Cincinnati. The assessment of the coal lands of Mrs. Maude Kemmerling of Philadelphia, daughter of the late Dr. Charles Thompson, originally fixed by County Commissioners at $1,000,000, the action court today at only $35,000. The action follows the victory of Mrs. Kemmerling, wife of Admiral Kemmerling, in the Supreme Court. It is one of the most radical reductions in taxes ever ordered by the Chubbill-County Court. The assessment of the lands, which was about the value of the amount which Scranton engineers testified the tract was worth. As the county tax rate is only 45 per cent. of the total, another big cut ensued.

Practically all remained to the evening service. Sum collected in pledges was $4,383.70. The budget calls for $3,175.00, including pastor's salary of $2,550.00, church overhead $2,226.00 and apportionment of benevolence amounting to $800. Pledges not received, which probably will carry the sum far over the top.
The attendance was large at the service, Sunday evening, when the pastor's year his flock faith. A brief historical outline of the policy or government was considered. Order and beauty of service; good taste and decorum of worship, and beautiful architecture of the edifice were outstanding features emphasized. Retaining a firm hold on the historical past has done much to add dignity and true devotion to the service, according to the pastor. That this country and England with Canada, have been at peace so many years, has been due in a large degree to close relationship of the Episcopalians and the Church of England, was the pastor's belief.

Bethel 57; South Paris 44
The recently organized Town Team of Bethel snatched the prize from South Paris Tuesday evening, in a struggle strongly tinged with fable personal and otherwise. Action was fast and rough in spots. Bethel lost a regular and sub by the eliminating process and played half of the last quarter with four men, having no reserves.

For South Paris, Edmunds replaced Hanlon for a breathing spell. Hanlon returned to the fray after missing part of the third quarter.

Goddard, one of Gould's basketkeepers, starred for Bethel as a fast floor worker and basket shooter. Frederick, the Academy coach and professional player easily came in for second honors as point getter and first on long shots. Van put up a nice defensive game but fell on the personal foul fence. Bartlett worked hard in his position and found the hoops during the last quarter. Patterson, the seven-foot center, dropped baskets with little exertion but the personal rule provided him a vacation before the fourth period.

For South Paris MacDonald led in basket weaving but was most unlucky at the ring. In fact a head followed the team and the peaky ball seemed bewitched and stubborn. Carl Fuller and Hanlon about split even on the score book and put up a great floor exhibition. French guarded well and kept his man well covered. He also barged two pretty 'throws from a rough field. Butts was keen in his position but failed to pocket numerous shots. Edmunds, who slid into play in the fourth session, fitted well and proved a good worker.
